Aim

Through attending the ASM and engaging directly with specialist anaesthetists, the program aims to foster interest in anaesthesia and perioperative medicine among senior medical students and pre-vocational doctors.

Objectives

The ASM sponsorship program is designed to foster interest in training in anaesthesia and perioperative medicine through providing a stimulating learning opportunity and facilitating communication between potential trainees and college trainees and fellows.

The program provides an opportunity to learn more about anaesthesia and perioperative medicine, talk to some fellows and trainees and meet college staff. Participation is designed to help you decide if speciality training with ANZCA is right for you.

Scope

The award is intended to allow the recipient to attend the ASM. The award will cover the registration, accommodation, travel costs up to $1,000 and meals and incidental costs up to $500 AUD for up to three individuals.

Eligibility

Applicants must:

1. Be a penultimate or final year student in an accredited medical school or provide evidence of a position as a pre-vocational doctor in Aotearoa New Zealand.

2. Identify as Māori.
3. Have an interest in specialising in anaesthesia or perioperative medicine.
4. Be able to attend the ASM in the calendar year for which the award is offered.
