Aim

Through attending the FPM Spring Meeting and engaging directly with specialist pain medicine physicians, the program aims to foster interest in pain medicine among Māori senior medical students, pre-vocational doctors and registrars.

Objectives

The sponsorship is designed to foster interest in training in pain medicine through providing a stimulating learning opportunity and facilitating communication between potential trainees and faculty trainees and fellows.

The program provides an opportunity to learn more about pain medicine, talk to some fellows and trainees and meet faculty staff. Participation is designed to help you decide if speciality training with ANZCA's Faculty of Pain Medicine is right for you.

Eligibility

Applicants must:

1. Be a second-last year or final year student in an accredited medical school; or a pre-vocational doctor; or a doctor in specialty training (registrar) in Aotearoa New Zealand.
2. Identify as Māori.
3. Have an interest in specialising in pain medicine.
4. Be able to attend the FPM Spring Meeting in the calendar year for which the sponsorship is offered.
